The penches were addressed to Brs. James Pendleton, Gentry, Mo. The crate of peaches gave way on John Cox and the mystery was solved when last week it was found that James Pendleton arrived home at Gentry Oklahomu after nearly eight months' absence. A telegram from there stated that Pendleton was married, had a wife and five children. When Sheriff O'Connor discovered these facts, the theory that Coda Morris' scheme of burying himself was one to clude his Emporia wife looked very probable and the Gentry marshal was wired to arrest Pendleton on a charge of bigamy. The marshal answered that he would not arrest him, as Pendleton was mayor of the Fortunately the sheriff of the Sheriff O'Connor and O'Connor Immediately wired his friend Sheriff Borkley of Albany, ten miles from Gentry, to arrest Pendelton. Berkley drove to Gentry on Baturday night and arrested his man. Sheriff O'Connor went to Albany, the county seat, to get Pendleton Saturday as the man to whom she was married stood before the woman he had wronged.

Sheriff O'Connor said today that in Gentry, of which town Pendleton is mayor, the Pendieton family is much thought of and respected. Mrs. Pendle-ton comes from one of the best families in that part of the state, and the five children, the oldest of whom is a daughter about 18 years old, are educated and good looking. The story of the Pendleton family is that James Pendleton's family was very wealthy when he came to Gentry many years ago.
